

Follow the Passion:

A Celebration & Exploration of Arts, Literacy & Creativity in Education

Friday, April 3, 2009
9:00 a.m. - 2:30 p.m.

Bow High School
Bow, New Hampshire
www.bownet.org/BHS

Registration
information available
after February 1st at www.nh.gov/nharts
www.aannh.org

Catherine O'Brian
(603) 271-0795
catherine.r.obrian@dcr.nh.gov

Frumie Selchen
(603) 323-7302
frumie@aannh.org

David Macaulay and David Carroll share more than just a first name. The two men are both authors and illustrators, and they're both recipients of MacArthur "Genius Grants." They'll be sharing their stories with students, teachers and others. Author and storyteller Rebecca Rule will lead the interviews and discussion.

The event, which is open to the public, is designed especially for teachers, children's librarians, teaching artists, parents, and middle- through high-school students.

Macaulay is a visual storyteller. His architectural series of books includes Cathedral, Pyramid, Mosque, and How Things Work. His most recent publication, The Way We Work, illustrates the remarkable workings of the human body.

Carroll, a naturalist, author, and illustrator, has the eye of an artist, the mind of a scientist, the voice of a storyteller, and the soul of a conservationist. His books include Swampwalker Journal, Self-Portrait with Turtles, Trout Reflections, and The Year of the Turtle.

Registration includes a box lunch, opportunities for book purchase and signing, plus a day pass for the Currier Museum of Art's exhibit "Building Books: The Art of David Macaulay." More information at www.currier.org